PGA TOUR ANTI-DOPING PROGRAM

This wallet card lists examples of Prohibited Substances and methods, and is not complete or exhaustive. The complete Prohibited Substances and methods list is contained in the most current PGA TOUR Anti-Doping Program Manual. Not all substances belonging to the prohibited classes are specifically listed below. Trade names for medications within the prohibited classes are printed in bold typeface.

Note: many nutritional and/or dietary supplements may contain substances prohibited under the PGA TOUR Anti-Doping Program. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not strictly regulate the supplement industry; therefore, the purity and safety of nutritional and/or dietary supplements cannot be guaranteed. Impure and/or contaminated supplements may lead to a positive drug test. Ingesting a supplement that is contaminated with a Prohibited Substance is not a defense to a violation of the Program.

NSF International's Certified for Sport Program tests and certifies select supplements as free from banned substances. If players desire to use supplements, the PGA TOUR recommends NSF's Certified for Sport Products. These supplements are available for purchase by PGA TOUR players. The full list of certified supplements can be found at: www.nsfport.com/listings/certified_products.asp
